

I am 66 years of age now and up until two years ago I (thought) I enjoyed good health, but was under constant stress at work

I suffered a mild heart attack in January 2004. The Angiogram from Prince of Wales Hospital showed some blockages but not severe enough to necessitate surgery (by pass) or stent intervention, however, a Cardiologist treated the condition with chemicals, part of the treatment was for high blood pressure, necessitating in taking Atacand, Zandip, Lipitor and Aspirin and Gicazide. The blood pressure remained uncontrolled

And the dosage was increased to cope with the rise in BP. I did not feel good and I was concerned with both increased BP and over the "extra" drugs.

Dr Chen was treating a friend of mine for an unrelated medical condition; I went along with my friend whereupon Dr. Chen introduced acupuncture, herbal, treatment plus meditation and gave me a lot of advice. My blood pressure started to stabilise and over a period of three months a visit to my GP indicated that not only I did require additional drugs but I was able to reduce my current dosage. I was very pleased with this result.

In August the following year I suffered a bleeding stroke, was rushed to a major Stroke hospital and was very lucky to survive, with just major impairments to sight and memory, (the stroke was attributed, (after extensive tests) to blood thinners, chemicals I was prescribed the major culprit "Atacand" plus Aspirin, I could not see out of my left eye nearly totally blind in that eye, and I could not read nor write or express myself. I saw Dr Chen again and he changed my acupuncture and herbal treatment to suit my latest condition.

Six months later, my neurologist, and my eye specialist said that my current condition was "as good as it will ever get" and I should not expect any further improvement.

However under Dr Chen's intervention I experienced constant and positive improvements both visually and mentally, subsequently a scheduled visit to my specialist, improvements were not only confirmed but surprising good comments were made of them, by the "these" leading specialists"

I suffered another "mild" heart attack in August 2005, extensive tests revealed blockages in the secondary arteries which necessitated "stent" interventions, which were carried out immediately. Following this procedure Dr Chen not only further modified his treatment but gave me encouragement and support and I felt better, stronger and happier every week.

My subsequent six months visit to Cardiologist and the stress test confirmed my feelings, and he seemed very surprised at my current condition, and what's more drew my attention to the results of the immediate tests saying how well my heart was performing compared to the previous time and had "come good" compared to the previous tests and how well I performed in the stress test and finally stated that he did not want to see me for at least 12 months. This was a major turnaround for me, I felt extremely well within myself and my Cardiologist gave me the "thumbs up" and without a slightest shadow of doubt I owe my good health fortune entirely to Dr Chen.

I am prepared to discuss and support my statements with anyone, at anytime, without any obligation whatsoever and give Dr Chen my full permission to discuss my medical condition and my contact numbers with anyone of concern, as I truly believe that his special care and treatment will without doubt assist the afflicted as it has helped me immeasurably.
