

Doctor Chen.

One morning I woke up with a pain down the left side of my face and shoulder and could hardly turn my head. I was recommended a neuro surgeon in north Sydney. I had X-rays and everything was normal for my age except some bone growth on the top vertebra. I assumed I had a pinched nerve and decided to put up with the discomfort rather than risk any complicated surgery. I visited my masseur who was only able to provide some relief and she recommended a visit to Dr.Chen. Her son had been treated by him for some time, with success. On my first visit the doctor, after examination, said that he could fix the problem and that the treatment would last 6 months. From then on, with weekly visits for acupuncture and an issue of herbs, to be taken daily, my condition slowly improved. I did check the herbs on Google and they were all listed as recognised medicines. As he had stated in the beginning, after 6 months I could turn my head from side to side and the pain had gone. During this time my wife started seeing him and one day, after a fall, I assisted her into the consulting room. She showed the doctor her left leg which was badly bruised and said the knee pained her. Dr Chen promptly put a needle in her right arm and some more around her right knee and said "how does that feel?" She replied that the pain had gone. I was very glad that I had witnessed such an amazing demonstration of the efficacy of acupuncture. In due course I again visited my masseur who immediately remarked that my neck felt completely different from previous visits and was very mobile.
